INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY OF VISIONARY AND DREAMLIKE ART

100

COMMEMORATIVE CATALOGUE

LeoniArt Project

LeoniArt Project is an International Exhibition of Visionary and Dreamlike Art, founded by the Italian artist Corrado Leoni (LeoniArt) in 2017.

Today we celebrate one hundred members of our community.

We spread our visions, our emotions, our deep themes worldwide, always free, for a better world.

LeoniArt

Corrado Leoni, LeoniArt, is an Italian painter.

As a visionary artist, he has performed various personal and collective exhibitions in Italy and abroad.

His huge paintings have been supplied as permanent artworks on the ceiling of the Ship Costa Serena and on the perimeter of Splendor, Carnival Cruise Line, whilst two visionary murals are shown today inside the railway tunnel in Genova. After twenty years of experience as a professional photographer, during which he performed many reportages for different Italian and international magazines, he returned to his original passion for painting, founding LeoniArt Project.

He recently wrote two books and keep working as a video reporter for an independent Italian TV company.

In the beginning

It all began on the night of March 13th, 2017, at a personal critical time for me.

After my long experience as a photographer and painter, I had in mind to create something artistic that could join many creative souls from all over the world, independently and without having to submit to the aberrant commercial rules of the market.

I was looking for a kind of mutual collaboration, a desire to challenge by proposing new and alternative spaces, trying to bring out those visions still simmering in the artistic universe, suffocated by the impositions of galleries, where often it is not quality that reigns, but a dystopian marketing that has nothing to do with art.

It took eighteen long months to find the first visionary artists, united by a vision of art similar to mine and who wanted to begin this adventure. Since I wanted to do the first exhibition in a prestigious location, I found the splendid Palazzo Doria Spinola in Genoa, headquarter of the Prefecture, as the venue for LeoniArt Project I. Thanks to the collaboration with the Eventidamare Association, the first exhibition was born, sponsored by the Liguria Region, the Municipality, and the Chamber of Commerce of Genoa, and featuring 42 artists from 32 different countries. It was just the beginning of a series of events in the following years, always with the goal of establishing the main LeoniArt Project in a prestigious and institutional venue, each in a different country. This was followed by collateral events in the informal and alternative spaces originally planned, called LeoniArt Drop, drops of visionary art.

Today, we are one hundred, one hundred artistic souls in the community, united by the desire to express their emotions and their dreamlike visions to the world without profit, continuing together on a fundamental path to send at least a signal to this increasingly adrift world. We can help it improve and, at the same time, help ourselves become more visible and an important part of the true History of Art.

Thank you all.

(LeoniArt)

Our vision of Art

The real meaning of the Visionary Art expressed by LeoniArt and the same path followed by this community is not easy to explain. (In the same time, on August 2025 the definition has been changed into "Visionary and Dreamlike Art")

When we look for a right definition of an artwork, we are involved to refer to a similar art movements already existing in the artistic scenario.

In this specific case, the first could be the Surrealism, the famous kind of Art shown as the juxtaposition of distant realities to activate the unconscious mind. The founder Andreè Breton declared that Surrealism resolved the previously contradictory conditions of dream and reality into an absolute reality, a super-reality.

Surrealist painters tried to elevate the dream-state into a higher reality, often creating illogical scenes with strange creatures, in a symbolic transposition, probably different from the original input.

Visionary Art, as known today, is something beyond the Surrealism, it transcends the physical world and portray a wider vision of awareness including spiritual or mystical themes.

It was born in the XVI century, with the first artworks of Hieronimuos Bosch, a dutch painter, who represented his visions in contrast with the religious and moral restrictions of that time.

After him, many other artists created visionary paintings, like the English William Blake and the swiss Heinrich Fussli.

Salvador Dalì, considered a surrealist artist, interpreted his Visionary Art in "La visage de la guerre", where the brutality of the Spanish civil war was represented by a terrible face having other faces in its mouth and eyes.

Visionary Art often carries themes of spiritual, mystical or inner awareness.

In this way, we can consider Symbolism, Cubism, Surrealism and Psychedelic art as direct precursors to contemporary Visionary art.

It received a great influence from the Vienna School of Fantastic Realism and today it is spread into different facets like Burning Man and Boom Festival, The Vision Train and the Interdimensional Art Movement.

One of the main difference between Surrealism and Visionary Art is that visionary authors use all means possible to access different states of consciousness and expose the resulting vision.

That's for me the point still distant from the Art of LeoniArt Project.

My visionary paintings come from my dreams, keeping the same scenes, same colors coming from my oneiric status. No additives, no external potions at all, just dreams. If sometimes my artworks contain some signs or symbols, they came from my fantasy or my involuntary sense of beauty and vision of colors.

My dreams are often prophetic, sometimes clairvoyant, and I paint exactly the scene I see in my visions.

That's a different kind of clairvoyance: Magritte, as surreal painter, made his artwork "La clarvoyance" showing himself painting a bird having an egg as model. I can see a woman watching the sea from her window and I paint the same woman as seen in my dreams.

I'm lucky to be psychic and to receive messages from other parallel worlds. I probably obtain this gift from my original shock happened when I was born and I was close to death. It was my apocalypse, shown in my painting called "10:35".

For the above mentioned reasons and for the aspects that brings my art into a sort of separation from the historical art movements called "Surrealism" and "Visionary Art" I want to consider the Art of LeoniArt Project a pure transposition of oneiric visions into real images, keeping the same configuration, the same view, in a total representation or, when the memory is faded, expressed by simple signs coming from dreams. Where that visions cannot be abstracted from the unconsciousness status, they come directly from our imaginary space hidden inside our mind.

That said, what can be the way, the tool that can transform our thoughts and our emotions into an artwork? Originally there were only our hands, our manual creative ability, aided by simple natural pigments, colors, with the help of brushes, pencils, spatulas.

Then photography, the computer and today artificial intelligence came, but which is the limit?

In my opinion, as long as the human being is able to create completely an artwork, recognizing it as an exact representation of his own thought, he will be the artist, and they will be his painting or his photograph. Conversely, if he is limited to having to choose from a series of images, a limited sequence of digital creations born from an algorithm, in order to express himself, the artist will become a victim of the world in which he found himself living.

For this reason, in LeoniArt Project, in addition to photographic images, even the most elaborate ones, works born from Artificial Intelligence software will also be accepted, where that the author's intervention is predominant and the he can eventually recognize it as an exact copy of his original vision.

Of course, this cannot happen with a simple keyboard question and a mouse click.

Our meetings

One of the most exciting moments of the LeoniArt Project, besides the exhibition openings, is when artists meet in person, even though they live in different parts of the world.

It was a pleasure for me to personally meet artists from Portugal, Serbia, France, South Africa, United States, Australia, and, of course, Italy. We found ourselves with the same spirit of good, old friends.

Here we can see some of our members, models, musicians, collaborators with the founder Corrado Leoni.

Sisqo Ndombe Akisieful is a Congolese multidisciplinary artist who lives and works in Kinshasa. Attracted by the urban culture. His work is based on the determination and commitment of the African woman in the process of change. Sisqo gives birth to new emotions and enriches his palette by painting the human being in the broadest sense, notably with the effects of "Crackles", while wanting his paintings not to be simple representations but a real vector of emotions.

When Lee Balan was a child he believed he came from another world. He was always captivated by the urban landscape that seemed alien and threatening.

Art was his refuge where he could create new worlds.

He is a Surrealist, a multi-media artist using assemblage and digital imagery. The constantly expanding metropolis is the inspiration for his art. The past, present, and future are written in the stones that comprise the city. "Cities emerge from a web of myths.

Eventually every city succumbs to the outrages of time, lost forever."

Japanese female, born in 1962. Self taught artist who started to capture & create 2D images in 2012 in SL which is a virtual world. Then she started working on RL images also after her travel in Venice in 2015.

There's hopeless life still seeking for hopes like abandoned walking shadows of people on the street, her artworks are expression of confusion of life, darkness of light and strangeness of love.

I am a self-taught photographer from Italy.
What I love about photography is the opportunity to create a dreamlike picture of reality, the chance that I have to convey feelings through an image. I like to create my pictures mostly in-camera, that's why I use Lensbaby tilt lenses or experimental techniques like out-of-focus and intentional camera movement. I love old decaying places, moss covered cemetery statues, dark and gloomy dungeons, wild forests at dusk. All places where my imagination is tickled to create and see reality in a different way.

I'm Breno Barros, an amateur photographer from Belém, PA, Brazil.

I work mainly with nudes, using digital analog photography, although I prefer working with film.

I have been working with nude photography for about ten years, almost always in natural surroundings involving water and the Brazilian countryside. In my work, I try my best to promote the integration between subjects and nature, in order to associate both as a single matter, where nudity is considered a mere, natural part of the whole scene.

Tatiana Bauman is a self-taught artist and book author who brings a unique blend of mysticism and vibrant creativity to her work. She has been working in graphic design for three years, and her writing career spans six years. Tatiana Bauman is an architect by profession. She skillfully combines two passions related to the charming landscapes of Siberia, Russia.

Living in the very heart of nature, she draws inspiration from the mystique of her surroundings and the freedom of childhood. Her paintings have an emotional depth that enchants everyone who comes across them, evoking feelings of joy and nostalgia. Each of her creations is an invitation to explore a world where imagination reigns supreme and leaves an indelible impression in the hearts of both old fans and newcomers.

Listen to the whispering of the woods and step forward after a lifetime of hesitation. Escape into the shadows of the tall trees beyond where anyone else can see. Allow yourself to get lost, stranded in your surroundings. Allow your camera to become your memory and capture the moments that will never return no matter how long the world waits.

Vincere Noel experiences photography as an adventure.

Hours are spent exploring, laying in dirt until just the right moment in time, and hours more manipulating each image into the ethereal. "The most difficult part is naming them," says Noel.

"I want the viewer to receive my work as organically as possible. There is no right or wrong."

Big Kate is a self-taught mixed media and digital artist. She blends tactile painting with digital innovation. Her process begins with acrylic on canvas, an intuitive practice that grounds her, before transforming original works into digital creations. This fusion of physical and virtual mediums allows her to explore themes of transformation, emotional depth, and the tension between technology and nature. Her works have been exhibited internationally, including in Barcelona, and featured in publications such as Arts to Hearts Magazine Issue 9 and International Art Awards. Through her art, Kate invites viewers into ethereal worlds where complexity and vulnerability coexist.

Loïc Bonnefont is a French painter and drawer who captivates by his overflowing imaginative world, which he also expresses through clay and humorous drawings.

« My immediate passions are for drawing and oil-painting. I often use these two techniques together to create a textural richness and strong contrasting effects. My painting comes from my imagination, free of constraint and academic imitation. Nothing pleases me more than to face the challenge, through these mediums, of conveying my many mental images, ideas and emotions, thus re-creating and transposing a metaphorical and poetic reality.

In this way I like to paint and draw the multiplicity of our human subconscious world, which is the essence of our humanity».

Artist Bernadette Boorsma, born in The Hague in the Netherlands, works with various materials. For several years now, she has preferred to work with ink/pen on paper.

She loves the clear lines of ink and applies them to the paper by scratching. This gives her drawings a dynamic appearance. Subjects are people, animals and nature, sometimes with a symbolic or political meaning.

She was born in 1989 in Izmir, Türkiye as a visual, emotional and musical. She began to create surreal digital art at 2016. She likes that technique and has so much artworks. Besides, there is one more thing that's part of her life. It's music... Also she likes to sing a song. Firstly she made her first experience with "The Abyss" exhibition. At the same time, she has also demonstrated her talent in this field by composing music with Can İler for this exhibition. In fact, she graduated from the Biology department of Ege University and has been working in a laboratory for many years. Despite this, she never stopped being interested in art. Currently, she continues her stage work with a band with which her performs.

I am a painter and a humanitarian based in Skopje, North Macedonia - creating art since 2005. I am inspired by humanity, nature and a vision of Peace that I long to see in the world. Through painting I aim to express stories that speak to the depth of the human spirit. Alongside my artistic practice, I have been actively involved in volunteering and working with refugees and marginalized communities. This has shaped my perspective and profoundly influenced the subjects of my work - Hope and Compassion. My paintings are portraits, landscapes, and abstracts, striving to convey emotion and connection between people. My art is exhibited in international platforms and is part of private collections in Skopje and Geneva.

I paint with the belief that art can be a gentle force for reflection, healing, and empathy into the world.

My name is Tainara, I'm 23 years old, I'm from the north of Brazil, Amapá, but I live in Santa Catarina, in the south.. I got to know the medicines of the forest and I was able to connect with my interior, my spirit and with nature. I got to know visionary art, I already had this contact with unusual states of consciousness, but I didn't know what it was about. I started attending psytrance events, festivals, I have a very strong connection between my art and psychedelic electronic music. In my paintings I bring reports of my spiritual experiences and I perform my art with great gratitude and love. Art is the umbilical cord of external and internal worlds, life is the expression of the spirit.

I am Barbara Carretta self-taught Italian artist. My artistic research right now focuses on the use of watercolor and ink (and therefore the water element), ideal for scrolling images past taboos and cages of the mind. In my drawings, I try not to copy reality but to interpret it and make it almost dreamlike, colorful, merging it with dreams and their magic. Colors and sensations are in the flow of emotions and I want to fix them on the canvas, in order to give voice to what inside us whispers every day, that guides us: our divine essence, our soul.

Bettina Dupont, born in 1996, is a French contemporary artist. She is a self-taught artist. In 2011, she began learning conceptual photography and in 2023, she learned to paint in order to explore another way of creating.

She uses symbolism and draws inspiration from popular beliefs to invent characters and stories around different themes relating to the human condition, she explores our relationship with time, our understanding of good and evil but more generally our world, and our current society.

Through simple compositions and impactful colors, every detail is thought out. I like my works to question, to provoke reflection and for each viewer to interpret them in their own way.

German native artist Yvette constructs otherworldly assemblage-sculptures, launching the viewer into a florid and prodigious wonderland of exciting time warps, phantasmagoric sur-realms and into her effervescent creative mind and soul.

Throughout the last 10 years, sculptural space has been Yvette's focus, and her use of recycled materials, found objects, and broken artifacts has challenged her to create something unique and unprecedented.

Always on the hunt for new techniques and the repurpose of new objects and materials, the creative process is not a regarded as choice, but rather the raison d'être for the artist, where she can lose and find herself...

After a decade spent in the West Coast of the USA, she recently moved back to her hometown in Germany and opened her own studio and gallery: The Nautilus Studio.

I'm Maria Laura Esain, Argentine plastic artist.

I began creating as a self-instructed artist when I was a child and eventually studying and developing my skills in different Art Workshops in Argentina and Costa Rica.

Art for me is a powerful tool of communication, through which I can capture my inner world using oil paints, acrylics, charcoal, graphite and mixed techniques. Painting and drawing is a spiritual need, a path of self-knowledge and reflection where my emotions, my fears and my passions are poured onto the canvas. An intimate journey that tries to spread and awaken a deep sensitivity in the viewer so that he discovers its own message beyond the surface of the canvas. My central theme is women, with their souls exposed, with their feelings on the surface; they are all part of me and we can all be them.

My profession is HR manager. I discovered digital art 2 years ago, and now it occupies a prominent part in my life. It helps me express what I feel, release my fantasies and dreams.

I love supplementing real life images with fantasy details creating a new vision of usual things. I create my works using imaging applications in my mobile phone.

Mamta Baruah Herland is a visual artist born in Assam, India and presently lives in Norway.

She works in various medium of arts: paintings, photography, digital fine art and video art, often incorporating sensitivity with existing technologies as part of a process to create works that can sometimes be defined as an art of synthesis. Her later work paints a visual connect between realities - a deep relationship between human and earth - a narrative space between the real and fantasy world.

Always delving in the creative side of otherworldly realms, Izzy's truest inspiration is painting. ... this journey has taken her life by storm, allowing her to give voice to her mystical experiences the adventures through her spiritual and healing work.

Many of the creations are conceived through dance, during this free flow, unique beings start to weave their light. The process unravels further once back in front of the canvas... information unfurls in richly coloured, inviting worlds with welcoming guardians.

Izzy is passionate about reminding us that magic exists, that we hold the codes to becoming the greatest version of our selves and that we all have wings.

Fusing a sense of childlike innocence with a sense of all-knowing depth and strength in her characters, she combines art with the spirit that dances her. Seeding subtle symbolism for the collective dreaming and keys to a deeper remembering ...

Joanne is a passionate artist, graphic designer, illustrator and teacher.

Her love for art started at the early age of two. After her O-Levels in Art from the University of London and Bachelor degree in Fine Arts, she had a successful 25 year career in advertising, Illustration and graphic design. She is now a freelancer, so she can devote more time to being an artist.

She loves to paint in different styles and themes using several different mediums like watercolors, acrylic, ink, pencil and digital tools. This broad palette of skills has brought her commissions for children's book illustrations, paintings and portraits

Juliettej99, lives in South Wales – UK.

I have always loved art, painting and drawing and am intrigued that such a meditative solitary activity can connect us to each other, help us communicate our emotions and understand what it is to be human. I love to create, speak and work with people from all walks of life and around the world, share ideas and inspire each other to make artworks to celebrate who we are.

Recently I started exhibiting work this year and have been fortunate to have it accepted in two in London ("The Nude" and "Summer Salon" with Candid Arts Trust) and the annual one held at a local gallery. Also I participated in two LeoniArt projects "Twins" and "Jump to the Future".

Life's enigma surrounds us, a cascade of mysteries swept away by the collective current of society. Amidst the relentless rush, we seldom pause to ponder our existence. Though psychedelics and spiritual teachings offer glimpses into the profound, our societal ties bind us, making it arduous to embark on a deep spiritual journey. In navigating these rapids, I place my trust in art as a raft. Through these currents, I seek to delve into the essence of consciousness and existence. Guided by inspiration, I navigate these waters, hoping to find solace and share my journey with all who cross my path.

Born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1982, he moved to the seaside (Mar del Tuyu) at the age of 8, where he currently resides. He was drawn to images from a very young age. His restless hands greatly helped him in his journey through the arts.

A self-taught visual artist, he began taking his first steps in illustration, relying on ink and pencil on paper. As his practice grew, he experimented with new materials. It was there that he came across oil painting, the latter being the primary technique he uses to express himself.

Surrealism and symbolism are what he is most passionate about when sitting in front of a canvas or a blank page. His source of inspiration was born after marveling at the work of Salvador Dalí, among other surrealists.

My art is autobiographical.

I collaborate with various people who provide an alter ego in front of my camera and through whom I express myself.

These alter egos symbolise the feminine aspect of my psyche the 'anima' - hence, my signature body of work is titled the Anima Series.

The Anima Series is a lifelong creative project and includes such themes as spirituality, the human condition and lost innocence.

The last of these derives from my military service as a teenager in the Australian SAS Regiment. This experience has moved me in the opposite direction, towards the feminine part of the masculine psyche as a means of striking a balance in my life.

The brooding Gothic appearance of my images reflect the shadow side of human nature, yet also acknowledge the wonder and fascination we experience as children. The world is simultaneously haunting and beautiful. New and old. Challenging and wondrous.

For me, the Anima Series is a spiritual returning to myself.

ROBIN, born Francesco Ghezzi in Milan in 1984, is an Italian artist who, through the representation of natural subjects in a surrealist key, transposes the emotions, fears, paradoxes and hypocrisies of the human being into his canvas, representing them in dreamlike scenarios in which the self-critical observer can recognize himself.

His artworks, all made by acrylic paint, speak of good and evil in a dualism that becomes "union"; the animals in his works become messengers, nature puts us in front of human nature.

Born in Belgium, and roots from Italy.
Most of all she is a citizen of the planet earth.
I am not who I was in the past
I am not the person who I will be in the future
I am always evolving,
I am emerging,
I am flowing,
I am always transforming, So no need to tell you who I was Because I am that what I am, in the moment.
My art is a representation of what we can find or recognize in nature; there are so many beautiful creations in nature that are never the same—that is why I don't commit to one style, because I am in love with so many.
The mind is like a limitless universe, full of possibilities.
There is an endless source inside everyone's mind, and if we tap in those realms of emotion, memory, fantasy, mystery, trauma, stillness, dreams and meditation.... You have a lot of stories to tell or show the world in your very own way.

Olga Vareli lives on Crete island, Greece. Her work is mostly based on photo manipulation, although occasionally she uses miniatures from her private collection to make a story. You can literally read little stories she has woven carefully while making her images. Sometimes there is sweet and sour humour behind an image. Magic realism pertains most of her work. She uses several techniques that photo manipulation offers. Her collection is thought provoking and definitely one can say she is a digital story teller.

Vanessa Vedda, a self-taught artist, uses art to express the essence of what the human soul feels, experiences, through vibrant colors but also light and shadow, combining psychology with personal creativity, emotions with techniques. For her, art is the free expression of an emotion.

Loredana, known as Wadara, was born in Caracas, Venezuela, in 1994.

Growing up surrounded by street art and skateboarding, she found her passion for fine arts, especially painting and sculpture. The name "Wadara," meaning "Guacamaya" in the aboriginal Pemón language, reflects her creative spirit and potential.

Her art is considered an alchemical instrument, bringing well-being to those who observe it, transforming spaces and inviting self-exploration.

Now living in Valencia, Spain, she continues to work on community projects, blending art forms to inspire happiness and self-awareness.

Ted Wallace is an artist and retired art teacher living on the east shore of Kootenay Lake in British Columbia, Canada. For 25 years Ted taught high school art at Crawford Bay school.

He taught part time; eventually teaching one semester and then spent about 6 months each year working in his studio.

Since his retirement he spends 3 or 4 months painting in Mexico, indulging in the colors, stories and energies of that land. The rest of the year he works in his studio on the East shore of Kootenay Lake; soaking up and reflecting the culture and the wild forces of the animals and landscape.

The painting is a reflection of this exploration.

The main gift is in the creation but the bonus is when others recognize some of their own story, spending time contemplating the image and finding threads to follow and explore. I am thankful to those who give it a second look.

Kaci Water is a multidimensional, multidisciplinary artist who believes strongly in the powers of beauty and expressive art as a healing and uniting force, which humans from all walks of life can find resonance and belonging within.

Her ever-evolving paintings are woven with intentionality—bringing together various elements of universal symbolism, archetypal themes, and geometric patterning inspired by nature's laws and foundational design.

Her paintings aim to point toward the deeper layers of reality, offering glimpses into the energetic and cosmic roots of existence that are intrinsically familiar and known, yet often go unnoticed in this day and age.

Jessica Zaviska is a multidisciplinary German artist with Czech roots. Her current focus lies in fractal art where math meets art & emotion.

Some pieces include poetry reflections. She also creates traditional works like paintings. With a B.A. in Fine Arts & History of Art and a B.Eng. in Media Engineering, she combines artistic intuition with analytical precision.

Inspired by the hidden patterns of nature and consciousness, her fractal art bridges logic, intuition, and imagination – a quiet exploration of infinite depth, wonder, and inner resonance.

Know thyself. That's what spiritual literature teaches us. Gurus, saints, sages, psychologists.

The best way to learn yourself is through a relationship.

With life.

With your beloved.

With people around.

With the surrounding. The best teachers are our partners and children. I choose to believe that the purpose of life is to "know thyself". Hence, the topic of relationships is close to my heart.

Hence, mainly this topic is reflected in my oil paintings: interaction, dynamics, bipolarity, emotions between the two. While exploring my artwork, I encourage you to use this experience to learn yourself. Just question: what resonates with you? How does the image/description make you feel? Which questions arise when you look at these artwork? Is there a deeper meaning?

Be curious.

Be conscious.

Be here and now.
